Viruses of the mind: Simple introduction to military memetics 3: military? memetics. edition, it's time for a throwback, a compilation and new info! (contains organization tactics, tools and ways to fight back against the information war!)

Right now, I'd like to make a call to action: if you agree with this article, please share it with someone, use the information in it to compile your own resources, spread the information around, make sure people know about these tactics and how to fight them, the information war is the most important battleground of our generation, winning it will make or break our future.

This article will be a compiled copy of my previous articles, all in one (with an extra surprise!)

Simple introduction to memetics and counterpropaganda

There will be addendums with extra information on different parts. Sources are uploaded to archive.org, links are available in the Pastebin QR code at the end. I tried to capture the sentiment of what military memetics are by comparing those tactics with the tactics used by COINTELPRO, I have seen those tactics being used by bad actors here, so I will give you a rundown:

What is a meme?

a meme is any idea that is capable of independently spreading and mutating, it is a virus of the mind, not all memes are malignant and some are beneficial (i.e. the technique for making fire), a meme can also be a cult or a religion, or any idea that self-replicates and spreads

- Addendum: this is oversimplified, but gets the point across.
- I highly recommend everyone read the actual documents, they are necessary context to understand this article (uploaded to archive.org, downloaded using tor browser):
- TUTORIAL: MILITARY MEMETICS - dr. Robert Finklestein - Robotic Technology Inc. Presentation 13 dec 11
- Memetic Warfare: The Future of War - First Lieutenant Brian J. Hancock - Military Intelligence Professional Bulletin April-June 2010 PB 34-10-2

- The Russian "Firehose of Falsehood" Propaganda Model Why it Works and Options to Counter It - RAND Corp - Christopher Paul and Miriam Matthews
- Political Communications in the "Fake News" Era: Six Lessons for Europe - Heidi Tworek - German Marshall Fund of the United States
- Extra Addendum: The process used by the meme control center explained in Brian J. Hancock's and CB Insight's documents is now highly automated by the use of AI, there is a reason why Trump, the PayPal mafia and the founders fund (along with a bunch of other filthy corpos) are shoveling Manhattan project amounts of money into

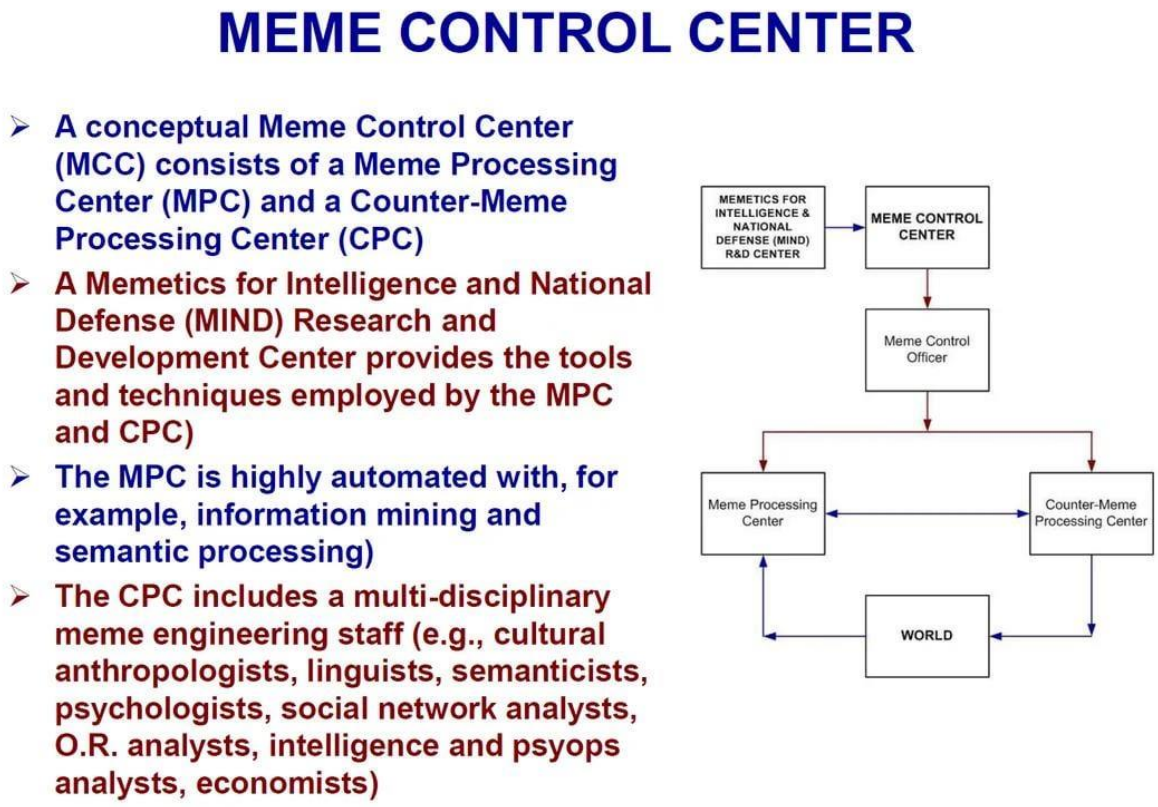
Stargate LLC (not to be confused with project stargate, which was about psychics, the name chosen might be intentional in order to sow confusion between both projects), it automatically scans basically anything that is posted online in any public communities and if it is subversive it floods the community with memes (via either bad faith discourse or actual internet humor) that are specifically crafted to counter those ideas, in the presentation there are actual mathematical models for predicting the spreadability and impact of the crafted memes, and this was over 15 years ago, you can only imagine how good they are at it now.



MEME CONTROL CENTER
A conceptual Meme Control Center (MCC) consists of a Meme Processing Center (MPC) and a Counter-Meme Processing Center (CPC)
A Memetics for Intelligence and National Defense (MIND) Research and Development Center provides the tools and techniques employed by the MPC and CPC)
The MPC is highly automated with, for example, information mining and semantic processing)
The CPC includes a multi-disciplinary meme engineering staff (e.g., cultural anthropologists, linguists, semanticists, psychologists, social network analysts, O.R. analysts, intelligence and psyops analysts, economists)
MEMETICS FOR INTELLIGENCE & NATIONAL DEFENSE (MIND) R&D CENTER
MEME CONTROL CENTER

Meme Processing Center
Counter-Meme Processing Center
WORLD

Stargate LLC acts as the automated MPC, and due to the advanced state of current LLM's it also functions as a CPC, fully automating the process

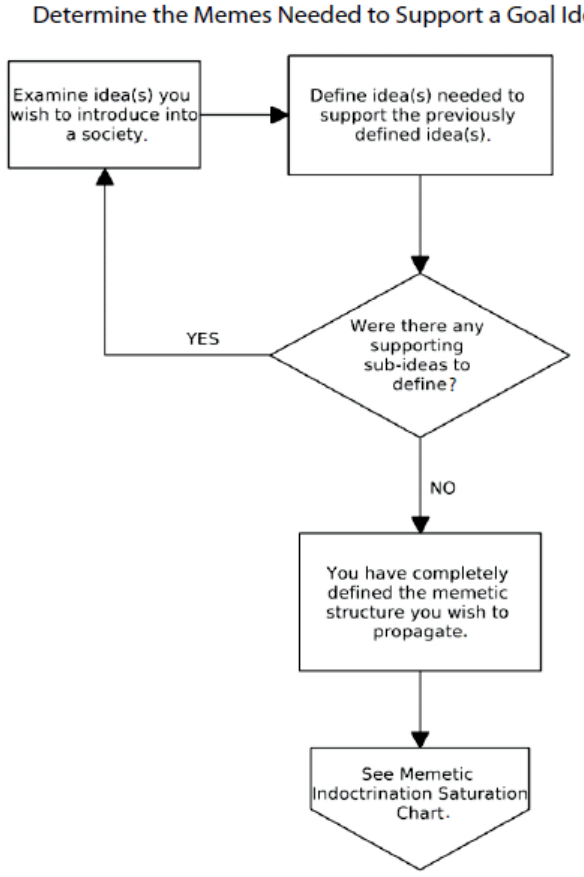
- This project is likely a continuation of MKUltra, social media and short form videos are likely made to be addicting as a form of "digital drug" (see: Peter Thiel was the first outside investor into Facebook) in order to increase the spread and susceptibility of the general population to memetics (as per Brian J. Hancock: "Exclusive exposure to one meme (also known as brainwashing) induces a “dependent mental state” in some people. They also employ tested and true techniques of bypassing the human action-attention reward (AAR) complex which is a fundamental part of the human psyche. Status among primates is defined by attention integrated over time. When human beings receive lots of attention, it elevates their status, and causes their brains to release dopamine and endorphins giving them a "high." Cults like al-Qaeda heap large amounts of attention on prospective martyrs in order to bypass the natural AAR pathway and release pleasure chemicals in the brain of the recipient. The recipient then misconstrues this positive feeling with the meme set of the organization causing them to internalize the beliefs of the cult as the source of their pleasure. Al-Qaeda employs many other modern brainwashing techniques to propagate their narrative (memeplex).")

Organization of American States has sub-divided democracy into six essential elements:

- Freedom
- Human Rights
- Rule of Law
- Free Regular Elections
- Pluralistic Political System
- Separation of Powers

These components happen to be memeplexes in their own right, and if this was an actual operation, they would have to be further sub-divided into their respective memes. In the interest of simplicity (and brevity) this step will be overlooked. The process of memetic component definition is summarized in Figure 1.



Determine the Memes Needed to Support a Goal Idea
Examine idea(s) you wish to introduce into a society.
Define idea(s) needed to support the previously defined idea(s).
Were there any supporting sub-ideas to define?
YES
NO
You have completely defined the memetic structure you wish to propagate.
See Memetic Indoctrination Saturation Chart.

With the specific memetic components defined, the next step is to incorporate packaging and replication tricks in order to make the message more attractive–and hence more likely to be passed on. Successful memetic packaging involves incorporating key elements that resonate with the human psyche, often on a very primitive level, within the context of the message. A list of primal and secondary human buttons can be found in Table 1.[12]

Table 1 Memetic packaging–primary and secondary behavioral hot buttons.

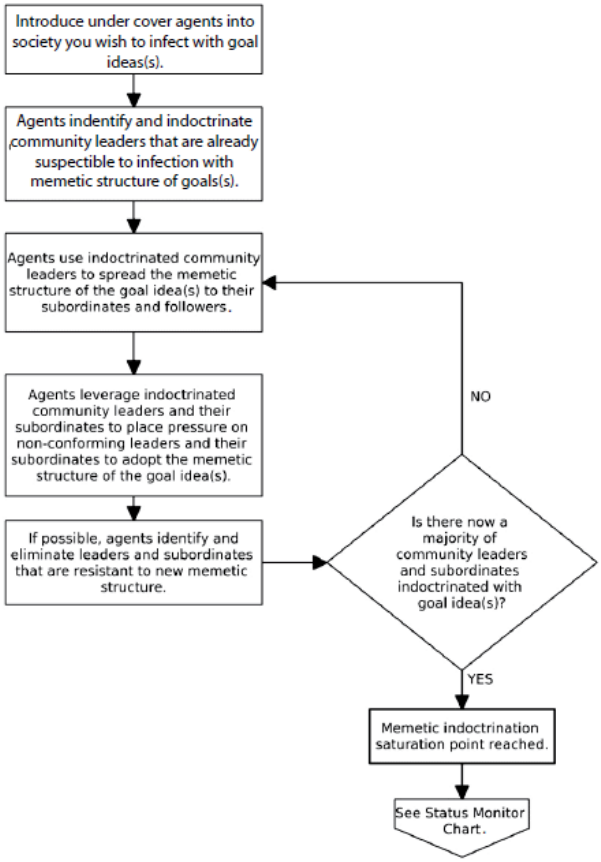
Primary Buttons	Secondary Buttons
• Anger	• Belonging
• Fear	• Distinguishing Yourself
• Hunger	• Caring
• Lust	• Approval
	• Obeying Authority

For example, when Richard Brodie wrote his book on memetics, he did not title it "Introduction to Memetics." He instead opted for the title "Virus of the Mind" because he knew that would tie into the human primal button of fear. Humans will go to great lengths to learn about and avoid perceived threats, and this fueled the sales of his book. While the primal and secondary buttons have universal appeal, there are differentiated male and female buttons, especially with regards to sexuality.[13] Judicious use of the buttons enumerated in Table 2 enables gender specific targeting of the memetic message.

Table 2 Memetic packaging–male buttons, female buttons, and repetition tricks.

Male Buttons	Female Buttons	Repetition Tricks
• Power	• Security	• Altruism
• Dominance	• Commitment	• Gifting
• Window of Opportunity	• Investment	• The Truth
		• Catchy
		• Mnemonics
		• Trojan Horse

Table 2 also lists a number of replication tricks which can further enhance the appeal of the message. Altruistic messages, for instance, are well received. Additionally altruistic individuals tend to have more friends and are held in higher regard, making it more likely that others will imitate them and spread their memes.[14] Gifting is a powerful technique as human beings are psychologically hard-wired to reciprocate when given something. The Hari Krishna cult took advantage of this by giving people a free flower, and in exchange people reciprocated by accepting their memes. The Trojan Horse technique is an insidious trick that



Introduce under cover agents into society you wish to infect with goal ideas(s).
Agents indentify and indoctrinate community leaders that are already suspectible to infection with memetic structure of goals(s).
Agents use indoctrinated community leaders to spread the memetic structure of the goal idea(s) to their subordinates and followers.
Agents leverage indoctrinated community leaders and their subordinates to place pressure on non-conforming leaders and their subordinates to adopt the memetic structure of the goal idea(s).
If possible, agents identify and eliminate leaders and subordinates that are resistant to new memetic structure.
Is there now a majority of community leaders and subordinates indoctrinated with goal idea(s)?
Memetic indoctrination saturation point reached.
See Status Monitor Chart.

to conduct brigade level memetic projection are summarized in Figure 3.

The same assets which are utilized to propagate the approved memetic message will also serve as

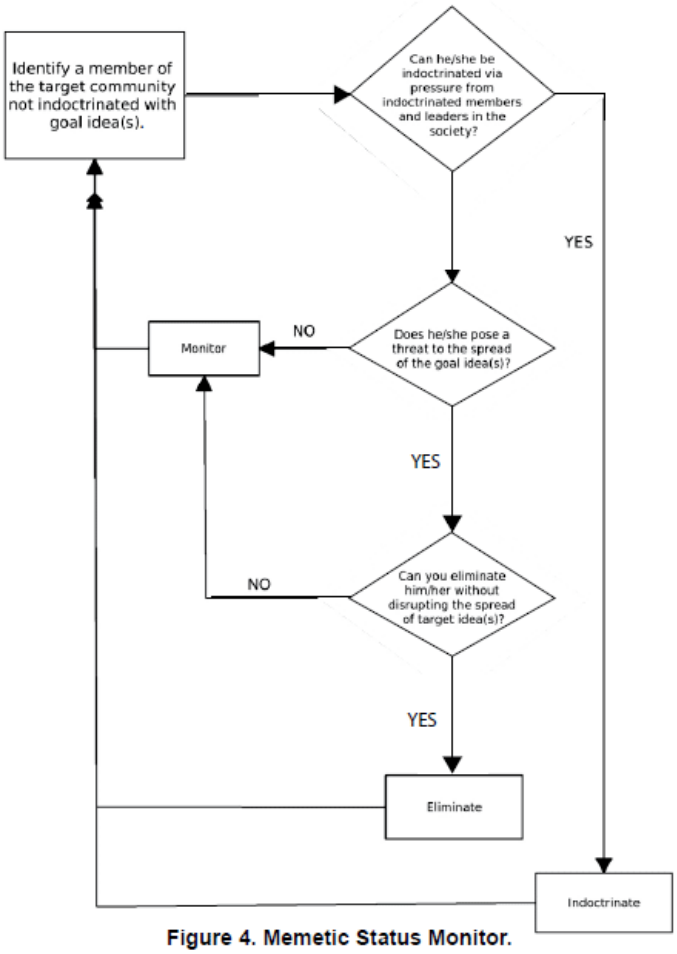
Achieving the desired level of memetic saturation will result in the target population exhibiting the artifacts and behaviors that will support the ongoing coalition mission. It is important to note, that the memetic process does not end here. If a process of monitoring is not put in place to ensure that the memetic message maintains a critical mass, the target population may revert to previous undesirably artifacts and behaviors. For a relatively cheap ongoing investment, memetic monitoring can insure that unforeseen and/or emergent entities do not unravel the meme set and compromise future security. This critical process is detailed in Figure 4.



Identify a member of the target community not indoctrinated with goal idea(s).
Can he/she be indoctrinated via pressure from indoctrinated members and leaders in the society?
YES
Does he/she pose a threat to the spread of the goal idea(s)?

1- CONTROL THE NARRATIVE

Their tactics involve spreading memes that are counterintuitive to the cause by blending them into the cause to de-escalate movements and destabilize them, this is done via bots and AI to rapidly recognize create and spread countermemes to any radical thought that goes against the status quo, this can be done via the normal military memetics strategy of creating a meme that is statistically spreadable and has a high impact (dr. Robert Finkelstein's presentation has mathematical models for calculating a meme's spread), or it can be done by flooding the zone or via the firehose of misinformation (both are very similar and usually used interchangeably), when both tactics are combined the resulting psyop campaign is extremely potent:

IT IS RESISTANT TO ALL TRADITIONAL COUNTERPROPAGANDA EFFORTS, THE ONLY WAY TO DEFUSE IT IS TO MAKE THE COUNTERPROPAGANDA INTO A MEME AND SPREAD IT, AND TO CUT THE SPREAD OF THE MISINFORMATION BY NOT EVEN MENTIONING IT, REPEATING THE MEME OR MISINFORMATION, EVEN TO DEBUNK IT WILL AMPLIFY IT; I.E. ANTI TRANS RHETORIC CAN'T BE STOPPED BY DEBUNKING IT, IT CAN ONLY BE STOPPED BY SPREADING ITS COUNTERMEME; I.E. MAKING THE OPPOSITE STATEMENT (IF SOMEONE SAYS X IS HARMFUL, YOU DON'T SAY X IS NOT HARMFUL, YOU SAY X IS HELPFUL)

- Addendum: see "The Russian "Firehose of Falsehood" Propaganda Model Why it Works and Options to Counter It - RAND Corp - Christopher Paul and Miriam Matthews" and "Political Communications in the "Fake News" Era: Six Lessons for Europe - Heidi Tworek - German Marshall Fund of the United States"
- Addendum: according to the German marshal fund repeating the falsehood, even to debunk it, makes more people believe it and amplifies it, so countering without spreading would involve making an opposite statement rather than a response, if someone says "bananas cause cancer because of the radioactive potassium" you don't debunk by making a long winded explanation about how bananas don't have enough radioactive potassium to be anywhere near dangerous, instead you spread the opposite statement: "bananas are healthy for you"
- Think inoculation, not damage control.

THE SECOND WAY TO DEFUSE IT IS TO SHED LIGHT ON THE TACTICS USED AND TO BLOCK, REPORT, IGNORE AND MAKE A POST OR MEME WITH THE OPPOSITE STATEMENT/COUNTERMEME

Another example of a countermeme could be "Deny, Defend, Depose" or "There is only one cure for dragon sickness"

2- COINTELPRO Tactics

COINTELPRO follows a pattern of dividing and conquering, via peer pressure, ridicule, flimsy arguments attempting to reframe a situation and sabotage of groups by bad actors.

they follow the following formula:

a) Identify subversive individuals and groups

b) Gather information and infiltrate

c) Create honeypots to weaken those groups

d) Use the information gathered to debunk, defuse, defame, humiliate and destabilize the groups to cripple their ability to make any meaningful change

e) Tactics may involve things as subtle as questioning comments, calls for peaceful unarmed protests that are basically just a parade and that don't actually cause any meaningful change (i.e. you may feel like you are doing something but you are not, if a protest is organized so its impact over the infrastructure, economy and logistics of the local and broader government or corporation being protested is the same as a strongly worded letter it is a parade, not a protest), sowing distrust in communities, and spreading rumors.

- Addendum: not to say parades don't have their place, they are extremely important, however these kinds of protests should not be thought of as actual protests (unless you're doing it on the lawn of a politician or at the doorstep of an ICE facility, blocking off the road with people to stop them moving in and out), but as PR and recruitment, they are aesthetic and serve to inspire others to join the movement, they control the narrative, so as to avoid the movement being branded an insurrection or riot, don't be fooled these are not protests and the purpose they serve is to inspire others to join the movement

An example of this would be protest flyers that have a sprinkle of truth in them, but that call for people to be completely unarmed and defenseless during protests, or that protesters should never defend themselves or other protesters

- Addendum, quoted from Wikipedia: (READ THE WHOLE ARTICLE)
- COINTELPRO (a syllabic abbreviation derived from Counter Intelligence Program) was a series of covert and illegal projects conducted between 1956 and 1971 by the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) aimed at surveilling, infiltrating, discrediting, and disrupting American political parties and organizations that the FBI perceived as subversive.
- They instructed FBI agents to:
- Create a negative public image for target groups (for example through surveilling activists and then releasing negative personal information to the public)
- Break down internal organization by creating conflicts (for example, by having agents exacerbate racial tensions, or send anonymous letters to try to create conflicts)
- Create dissension between groups (for example, by spreading rumors that other groups were stealing money)
- Restrict access to public resources (for example, by pressuring non-profit organizations to cut off funding or material support)
- Restrict the ability to organize protest (for example, through agents promoting violence against police during planning and at protests)
- Restrict the ability of individuals to participate in group activities (for example, by character assassinations, false arrests, surveillance.)

- A March 1968 memo stated the program's goal was to "prevent the coalition of militant black nationalist groups"; to "Prevent the RISE OF A 'MESSIAH' who could unify ... the militant black nationalist movement"; "to pinpoint potential troublemakers and neutralize them before they exercise their potential for violence [against authorities]"; to "Prevent militant black nationalist groups and leaders from gaining RESPECTABILITY, by discrediting them to ... both the responsible community and to liberals who have vestiges of sympathy"; and to "prevent the long-range GROWTH of militant black organizations, especially among youth". Dr. King was said to have potential to be the "messiah" figure, should he abandon nonviolence and integrationism, and Stokely Carmichael [addendum: aka Kwame Ture] was noted to have "the necessary charisma to be a real threat in this way" as he was portrayed as someone who espoused a much more militant vision of "black power". While the FBI was particularly concerned with leaders and organizers, they did not limit their scope of target to the heads of organizations. Individuals, e.g. writers, were also listed among the targets of operations.

3- The makings of a good protest

A PROTEST FOLLOWS THE PHYSICS OF A HERD, THOSE THAT STRAY FROM IT ARE PICKED OFF, THIS IS WHY YOU MUST BE ARMED WHILE IN GROUPS OF OTHER ARMED INDIVIDUALS, STRENGTH IS IN NUMBERS

- Addendum: armed only if you are in a group of other armed individuals, being armed alone makes you a target, for the vets among you: remember the battle buddy system.

CREATE SMALL GROUPS OF INDIVIDUALS, 6-10 AT MOST, CHOOSE 2 TO LEAD THE GROUP, EACH OF THOSE TWO LEADERS GOES INTO A SEPARATE GROUP OF OTHER LEADERS FROM OTHER LOCAL AND NATIONAL GROUPS, THIS WAY WHEN PROTESTS ARE ORGANIZED THE ORGANIZATION GOES THROUGH A COLLECTIVE HIERARCHY THAT HAS ITS OWN FALLBACKS AND THE INFORMATION GETS CIRCULATED QUICKLY AMONG ALL MEMBERS, WITH MINIMUM RISK OF STATE INTERFERENCE

- Addendum: this is explained in the simple sabotage manual, you have groups of (for example) neighbors, and the leaders of those groups form larger groups, and the leaders of those groups form other groups, creating a vertical hierarchy (avoid lateral hierarchies), this way there is a separation between the people who are newly joined and the people who are helping make the decisions without removing the democracy from the process (and thereby risking the entire protest falling to COINTELPRO tactics), if two leaders are in different leader groups this ensures that there is a high likelihood messages will get transmitted and the protest will be properly organized, this way even if there is infiltration by the feds, the structure is not compromised

- This type of organization is called the "Clandestine cell system", there is some very useful information to be learned from history, I'd like to recommend specifically this book that talks about the Viet Cong as some optional literature, it specifically counters COINTELPRO tactics.

A protest must:

a) be organized through secure channels, groups must be split into smaller groups as detailed above

b) include coordinated security (the reticulum mesh via Columba would be ideal, as it can connect nearby phones via Bluetooth LE mesh without the need for RNodes), signal is an inferior alternative, but also passable, this security must be trained in self-defense (shooting course, first aid, gun safety and knowledge of escalation and de-escalation tactics) security must be armed.

- Addendum: Columba does not have group chat functionality, but it is in the works.

Individuals acting as coordinated security must be organized in evenly spaced-out groups:

One group should carry shields (such as wooden signs with arm straps):

addendum: aesthetics can be a memetic package in and of itself, being uniform and wearing matching clothes that look "cool" and "badass" are very powerful as memetic propaganda tools, especially if those clothes and symbols are unique to the movement.

One group should carry weapons:

Addendum: this person is alone, do NOT do this alone as that will make you a target, but they got the right spirit

One group should carry RNodes or phones with Columba or signal and be responsible for the coordination of the protest together with the group leaders

- Addendum: These could be grouped with those carrying first aid, however it is good to have an organized hierarchy, so it is a good idea to keep a few with empty hands just coordinating everything.

One group should carry first aid and tear gas disposal (i.e. cones and water bottles):

All groups should carry: Hearing protection, baggy clothes and full-face masks for protecting against tear gas, optionally carry handguns

- Addendum: Groups must walk together, or at least close by, ideally forming defensive lines around the main group of protesters to protect stragglers, with some peppered in the middle, especially those with communications and first aid

Remember always that these groups are for defending other protesters only, they are essentially a show of force that is there to make the police and ICE scared of escalating, they are a de-escalation and defense tactic.

c) Protests should strive to be disruptive, this can be done by blocking roads, doing massive walk ins, simple sabotage, disrupting the businesses that serve ICE, and through acts of civil resistance, such as reflecting LRAD back to the police with shields, attempting not to cross the line into pure vandalism.

- Addendum: this can also include more destructive tactics, or some less destructive ones, such as spray-painting flock cameras.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN VANDALISM AND CIVIL RESISTANCE IS FOCUS AND SCALE, VANDALISM IS UNCONTROLLED, CIVIL RESISTANCE PINPOINTS SPECIFIC TARGETS FOR MAXIMUM DISRUPTION AND MINIMUM CHAOS.

d) Protests must make those in power feel uncomfortable and unsafe in public (and in private!) unless they change their actions:

Examples of good countermemes in the form of internet humor that are productive towards this idea.

e) Protests must include its own logistical networks (i.e. people in charge of delivering food, water and other resources for protesters):

Free food and PPE crowdfunded by groups and small businesses in Portland.

f) Protests must include support networks for fellow protesters who cannot participate due to life circumstances, an example is food banks, disruption of business on a large scale so as to make businesses stop working during the protests, support of local small businesses, boycott of large companies.

g) A protest is never truly over; the fight continues on the battleground that is the world of ideas: the internet. Educate others on military memetics, the firehose of falsehood and the tactics used by COINTELPRO, create your own countermemes and if you see someone debunking a falsehood educate them on the fact the they are spreading it more, and give an example on how to counter it without spreading it.

However, keep in mind that sometimes an innocuous falsehood is better than a damaging one, as said by RAND: "Don't expect to counter the firehose of falsehood with the squirt gun of truth.

A countermeme can also be as simple as mentioning the tactics they are using (i.e. see Gary Webb memes).

h) CONTROL THE NARRATIVE - Be the first to spread information, do not let them create the narrative, if ANYTHING happens you must be the first to report it with all the facts you know of laid out, this includes making a video of yourself that other people in your group can share quickly before the feds can make up lies about you.

BE THE FIRST TO TELL THE STORY

Q&A time:

Q: Bananas don't prevent cancer though. Thats just another falsehood… how does that help?

(originally the countermeme I created to "bananas cause cancer" was "bananas prevent cancer")

A: It directly stops the spread of the first falsehood, which is dangerous, the banana example was a hyperbole as I don't want to risk using an actual falsehood and spreading it, it's a bit simplified but gets the point across, if someone attacks a cause you don't defend against the attack by debunking it, instead you support the cause directly in a way that contradicts the attack before it even happens

Think inoculation, not damage control.

Keep in mind that sometimes an innocuous falsehood is better than a damaging one, as said by RAND: "Don't expect to counter the firehose of falsehood with the squirt gun of truth"

Q: How should I organize?

A:The correct way to go about organizing can vary, but knowing your neighbors is step 1, you create a group with your street by going door to door (avoiding the use of signs and other things that mark you as a target), a meeting chooses two leaders of the group, each goes to a separate street and the leader of that street, forming groups of streets (i.e. neighborhoods), the leaders group chooses two leaders from among them to connect with the leaders from other neighborhoods to form a city group, city group form county groups, county groups form area groups, area groups form state groups, state groups form national region groups, and those groups form a country wide group, there can also be lateral connections between groups as fallbacks and backups (but those should be avoided for general use as it is easy to sow confusion through them), when someone proposes something it goes up the chain of leaders and back down to all groups. Groups should crowdfund PPE and help out with food banks on the neighborhood and street level, the name of this kind of structure is a "clandestine cell system"

Simple introduction to military memetics 2: Electric Boogaloo: Positivity is poison edition; we need to talk about the zone being flooded.

So, we need to talk about positivity:

With the Superbowl and anti-trans legislation being blocked (by the republicans no less) came a wave of positivity posts on social media, while this is good, too much of it is a distraction. It is the same distraction that has always been used for dismantling movements, while they are good things, they should not be thought of as full victories, they are the bare fucking minimum the Superbowl is in its core, bread and circus, supporting it is supporting the companies that sponsor it, the same companies that also sponsor ICE, even if the message is very positive, the medium its being transmitted in poisons it

In the past, such as with BLM protests, good things were used as a way to distract the population from protesting, with no kings around the corner this same tactic is being used to destabilize the movement, here's how it works:

1. (too much) Positivity is poison: whenever people talk about flooding the zone what comes to mind is the Boris Johnson tactic of "throwing a dead cat on the table", that is, by saying or doing something outrageous you can distract the people from what they were originally angry about, but this is definitely not the full story, positivity can also be used as an insidious poison, while negative feelings cause a deeper impression on people, it also builds anger inside them, and with just the right amount of positivity you can dismantle that anger completely. However, with too little positivity a movement also loses momentum, the amount of it matters.

2. So, the cycle goes: people protest about really bad thing -> dead cat is thrown on table -> people get angry about the dead cat -> positive news gets spread around -> people forget really bad thing
3. This goes hand in hand with attaching messages of positivity together with new things for people to get angry at, this is true controlled opposition.

As mentioned on the Brian J. Hancock paper:

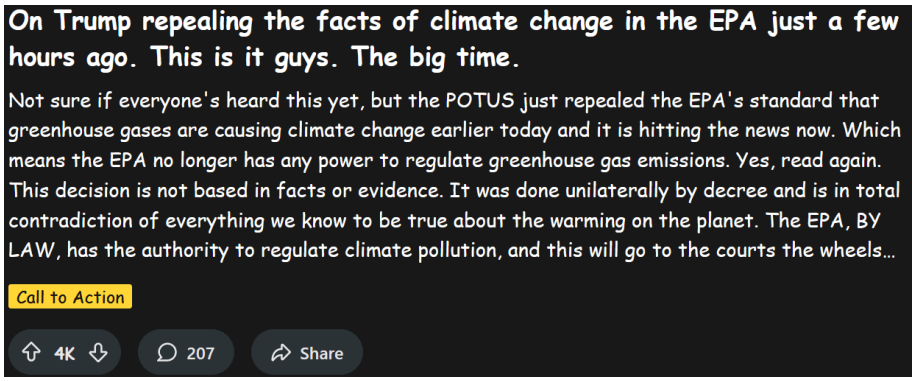
"The Trojan Horse technique is an insidious trick that involves proffering a very attractive meme such as sex, and having a less attractive meme such as beer sales ride on its coat tails. The target individual is effectively seduced into accepting the entire memetic package as a whole, including the less desirable elements.

Finally, there are a number of propagation techniques that can expedite the saturation of the target message. Repetition breeds familiarity, and when combined with multiple media formats appeals to a wide range of personality types. Key leaders can quickly influence their followers to accept a message; and gaining their endorsement should be an integral part of any propagation plan. Finally placing someone in a state of cognitive dissonance can open a window of opportunity for changing that individual's meme set. High pressure salesmen make extensive use of this technique."

Effectively this is what the bad bunny halftime show on Superbowl is, while the message is good and very positive, the medium poisons it, the Superbowl is a symbol of American consumerist and corporatist culture, it is bread and circus, while this is not trying to throw shade at bad bunny, we still need to remember that the companies advertising there are still the enemy, while bad bunny probably does not have anything to do with any conspiracy or plot he was still chosen, out of everyone else who could be chosen, he was chosen by those same companies that are financing ICE, the same companies that are sponsoring the Superbowl, they allowed him to be there, this was calculated and pre-meditated as a way to soften the brand image of the sponsors.

As such I'd like a call to action to everyone who reads this: join us in memetic warfare by saving important posts of the last 1-2 months and creating memes about them, using ideas such as "They are trying to distract us from Renee Good and Alex Pretti" or "it is all a distraction to pacify the protests" for those memes and spreading them as far and wide as you can, send them to friends, family, post them online, whatever it takes to break this cycle. (NOTE: this is not a call for brigading, it is simply a call for people to fight against bots and controlled opposition)

2 DAYS LATER… Welp, I fucking called it:



On Trump repealing the facts of climate change in the EPA just a few hours ago. This is it guys. The big time.
Not sure if everyone's heard this yet, but the POTUS just repealed the EPA's standard that greenhouse gases are causing climate change earlier today and it is hitting the news now. Which means the EPA no longer has any power to regulate greenhouse gas emissions. Yes, read again. This decision is not based in facts or evidence. It was done unilaterally by decree and is in total contradiction of everything we know to be true about the warming on the planet. The EPA, BY LAW, has the authority to regulate climate pollution, and this will go to the courts the wheels…

Q&A time:

Q: I think positivity is really important to help prevent burnout. And a lot of people are struggling with burnout right now.

A: Yes, but people must also not forget about what is happening, positivity is good, but too much of it can make movements fall apart, so can too little of it.

There is this interesting thing that happens to sales reps. When you make that sale the first thing you're supposed to do is knock on another door because you are very likely to make another one immediately after. Most people will go and have lunch to celebrate and go home. I think similar psychology at work. You rest because you feel good

Inhibiting Imitative Terrorism through Memetic Engineering

"Inhibiting memes that transmit messages of violence

It has been argued that memes, in their need for replication, provide a key piece to the jigsaw puzzle explaining terrorist behavior. Individuals matching some or all of the criteria described above may be seduced and aroused by the terrorism meme, thereby ensuring its survival and replication. The key to reducing the incidence of terrorism would then lie in the elimination of such a meme. There is a number of strategies that can be employed to achieve such a goal, with the most obvious but least palatable being censorship of the media.

It is therefore suggested that the information contained within the terrorism meme be altered so that its ability to replicate is severely compromised. Words and terms such as bomber, sniper, revenge, retribution, freedom fighter, assassin, terror, and other such descriptive vocabulary must be eliminated from the media's portrayal of violent events. Instead, terrorist activities would be better described with terms such as cowardly, insecure, weak, malicious, gutless, pointless, mentally unstable, spineless, puny, pathetic, despicable, and loathsome. From a semiotic perspective, it is hypothesized that within the mind of an angry and dispossessed individual, the re-engineered images and interpretations created by such unappealing terms would inhibit all copying behaviors."
